14 solutions to common OS X El Capitan problems on Mac

<http://www.digitaltrends.com/computing/14-problems-mac-os-x-10-11-el-capitan-fix/6/>

While El Capitan included a lot of performance enhancements for OS X, it had the opposite effect on Microsoft Office, especially when it comes to email. So if Outlook keeps on quitting unexpectedly or if you find that Word is crashing ever since the update, you've probably run into one of the Office bugs.

- Apple has released an update, OS X 10.11.1, designed to take care of many of these Office problems. Head over to the Apple Menu, and click on Software Update... to see if any updates need to be downloaded.
- You can also restart completely to enact any waiting updates. Visit the Apple Menu (the button in the top left of your screen with the apple logo), and select the option Restart. Sometimes if Yosemite has really hit a wall this will freeze your computer instead of restarting it. If this happens, press Control key-Command key (⌘) -Power button at the same time. This will force the restart – just be sure that your programs are closed and your data saved before you attempt this. This should download any waiting updates on your computer.
- Try downloading updates directly from Microsoft if any are available. Visit the Help Menu for any Office for Mac program, and click on Check for Updates – the program should do the rest. You can also visit the Microsoft website directly do see if any updates are available.

Pro Tip: How to speed up your Apple Watch

<http://www.cultofmac.com/400136/pro-tip-how-to-speed-up-your-apple-watch/>

Apple Watch is becoming second nature to me after several months of owning it. It's gotten to the point where I feel like something's missing when I don't strap it to my wrist in the morning before starting my workday.

Thing is, the Apple Watch has so many animations on it that I sometimes feel like getting things done takes too long. I just want to find and use apps, with a minimum of fuss and bother.

Luckily, you can turn off those animations on Apple Watch to make it all feel a bit snappier.

Apple Watch by the (estimated) numbers, and 11 claimed myths about the wearable

You have to smile at the idea of a conference devoted to discussing the 'the business of Apple Watch' when there's only one company which knows the real numbers, and that company isn't telling. But that doesn't, of course, stop people guessing.

Fortune's Philip Elmer-DeWitt helpfully rounded up some of the numbers presented at the Glance conference. Asymco's Horace Dediu has projected that Apple will hit 21M sales in the first 12 months. Assuming the numbers skew heavily toward the Apple Sport, that gives the company somewhere around $8B in revenue – or more if they don't. Creative Strategies' Ben Bjarin believes sales will hit a staggering 100M by 2017.

Some estimated percentages were also presented ...

Apple is said to have 80% of the smartwatch market at present, which, if anything, seems like a conservative estimate – though there is a more competition now, and the line between a smartwatch and a fitness band can be a somewhat blurred one these days.
